Chicopee (MA) (Postcard History Series)

Stephen R. Jendrysik : Chicopee (MA) (Postcard History Series) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Chicopee (MA) (Postcard History Series):

2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Chicopee 1950 - 1975 By Kenneth A. Swierad Brought me back to my "YOUTH" Chicopee grad class of 1963, remember being rained upon at Szot Park. So many pictures and names I remember KEN Swierad

The original meaning of "Chicopee" is "place where water rushes. In 1823, Jonathan Dwight purchased the water privilege at Skenungonuck Falls in Chicopee. Five years later, the textile mill had fourteen thousand spindles and nearly five hundred looms, making it the second-largest operation in Massachusetts. By 1831, there were two giant dams, two waterpower canals, and two manufacturing communities on the Chicopee River. During the next one-hundred years, eight Chicopee River companies gained product recognition around the globe: Ames, Belcher, Lamb, Dwight, Stevens, Spalding, Fisk, and Duryea. These vintage postcards illustrate the significant role that manufacturing played in the day-to-day life of this blue-collar community.

About the Author Author Stephen R. Jendrysik is the president of the Edward Bellamy Memorial Association and a longtime member of Chicopee Historical Commission. He retired in 2003, completing a forty-year career in the Chicopee public schools. Depending almost entirely on private postcard collections, this historian's insightful comments capture the spirit of a community that works.
