Claremore (OK) (Postcard History Series)

April Churchill, Dorothy Kizer-Dennis : Claremore (OK) (Postcard History Series) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Claremore (OK) (Postcard History Series):

Throughout the years, a city's history has a way of disappearing along with a way of life that will most likely never be seen again. The reader will be offered a rare glimpse into the very heart of Claremore's vibrant past. Claremore is truly brimming with history, from the radium baths to the Frisco Railroad to the town's famous residents, including Clem

Rogers, father of the widely loved entertainer and advocate for Oklahoma statehood in 1907. This collection of vintage postcards contains views from the town beginning at prestatehood, when Claremore was considered part of Indian Territory. Each postcard sends the reader on a journey through time from an era full of freedom and spirit to "getting your kicks on Route 66."

About the Author Dorothy Kizer-Dennis and April Churchill are a mother and daughter team who reside in Claremore, the county seat of Rogers County. Both are members of the Rogers County Genealogical Society and share a passion for preserving history.
